Legal Summary

The State has a non-derogable duty under Article 21 to protect the right to life and personal liberty of every person. In violent crimes, the judiciary must ensure: (a) immediate protection of the victim and witnesses, (b) preservation of evidence, (c) expeditious trial to prevent secondary victimisation, and (d) enforcement of the victim's right to a speedy trial as an integral part of Article 21.

RULE 1 — Major Injury → High Priority (Article 21): Bodily integrity and the right to health under Article 21 are seriously compromised. Strong urgency is constitutionally required. RULE 2 — High Vulnerability → Elevated Priority (Doctrine of Parens Patriae): The state has a special duty to protect vulnerable persons. Articles 15, 39, and 39A require the court to ensure that vulnerable litigants are not disadvantaged by delay. RULE 4 — Violent Crime → Article 21 Primacy: Criminal matters involving violence directly implicate the right to life and personal liberty. The state's duty under Article 21 requires urgent judicial attention. FINAL DETERMINATION: Based on the above constitutional rules and the extracted case features, the priority assigned is High. This determination represents the impartial state's assessment of the urgency required to ensure that constitutional rights are protected and justice is delivered without undue delay.

Cases involving violent crime directly implicate the most fundamental right under the Constitution — the right to life. The state's failure to accord such cases the highest priority would constitute a violation of its affirmative obligation under Article 21 to protect life and ensure access to justice.

State's Perspective

STATE'S CONSTITUTIONAL ASSESSMENT (Neutral, Unbiased Analysis from the Perspective of the Judiciary) This assessment is prepared from the standpoint of an impartial state adjudicating disputes under the Constitution of India. opportunity, and shall provide free legal aid to ensure that no citizen is denied opportunities to secure justice due to economic or other disability. - Key principles: Free legal aid, Equal opportunity in the legal system, Justice for the economically disadvantaged #### III. SEVERITY & URGENCY ASSESSMENT

Primary Article: Article 21 Analysis: The right to life under Article 21 includes the right to live with dignity and the right to health. Major injuries — especially those requiring hospitalisation, causing permanent disability, or posing life-threatening complications — constitute a serious interference with personal liberty and bodily integrity. The State must ensure prompt access to medical care, investigation of the incident, and accountability. Each day of delay risks permanent aggravation of the harm. Urgency Classification: High — bodily integrity and dignity are seriously compromised. #### IV. STATE'S DUTY UNDER THE CONSTITUTION The State has a non-derogable duty under Article 21 to protect the right to life and personal liberty of every person. In violent crimes, the judiciary must ensure: (a) immediate protection of the victim and witnesses, (b) preservation of evidence, (c) expeditious trial to prevent secondary victimisation, and (d) enforcement of the victim's right to a speedy trial as an integral part of Article 21. #### V. VULNERABILITY & POWER BALANCE ASSESSMENT Vulnerability Level: High This indicates: ['Minors / Children', 'Pregnant Women', 'Elderly / Senior Citizens', 'Disabled Persons', 'Scheduled Castes (SC)', 'Scheduled Tribes (ST)', 'Other Backward Classes (OBC)', 'Adivasis / Tribals', 'Dalits', 'Economically Weaker Sections (EWS)', 'Below Poverty Line (BPL)', 'Daily Wage Workers', 'Agricultural Labourers', 'Domestic Workers', 'Migrant Workers', 'Unorganised Sector Workers', 'Bonded Labourers', 'Sex Workers', 'Human Trafficking Survivors', 'Refugees / Asylum Seekers', 'Homeless Persons', 'Orphans', 'Single Mothers / Widows', 'Persons in Custody', 'Victims of Domestic Violence', 'Victims of Sexual Assault', 'Victims of Torture'] Constitutional Protection: Articles 14, 15, 15(3), 15(4), 15(5), 16(4), 17, 23, 24, 39, 39A, 41, 46, and the Directive Principles under Part IV mandate special protection for vulnerable groups. The Doctrine of Parens Patriae obligates the state to act as guardian for those who cannot protect themselves. Judicial Duty: The court must adopt a protective, sensitised approach. Vulnerable litigants are entitled to: (a) in-camera proceedings where appropriate, (b) assistance of counsel if unrepresented, (c) protection from intimidation, (d) expedited hearings to prevent secondary trauma, and (e) rehabilitation and compensation directions where applicable. Influence Level: Low Individuals, small businesses, or parties of comparable standing Constitutional Concern: Parties are of broadly comparable standing. Article 14 equality concerns are less acute, though the court must still ensure procedural fairness. Recommended Countermeasure: Standard procedural safeguards apply. The court should proceed with the matter in regular course, without special countermeasures. #### VI. APPLICABLE restricting rights must be proportionate to the aim sought — it must be necessary, suitable, and not excessive. - Application to this case: Used to assess whether the priority assigned is proportionate to the gravity of the rights violation. - Doctrine of Parens Patriae: The state has a duty to protect those who cannot protect themselves, such as minors, disabled persons, and the mentally ill. - Application to this case: Critical for cases involving vulnerable victims — the state must act as guardian. - Rule of Law: Every person, including the State, is subject to the law; no one is above it. Government action must have legal authority. - Application to this case: Foundational principle engaged in every challenge to executive or legislative action. ### VII. PRIORITY ASSESSMENT & JUSTIFICATION Assigned Priority: High Category Rationale: Cases involving violent crime directly implicate the most fundamental right under the Constitution — the right to life. The state's failure to accord such cases the highest priority would constitute a violation of its affirmative obligation under Article 21 to protect life and ensure access to justice. ### VIII. FINAL OBSERVATION From the perspective of an unbiased state adjudicating under the Constitution of India, this matter has been assigned High Priority. This is constitutionally appropriate and reflects the gravity of the rights engaged. The court is directed to list this matter expeditiously, ensuring that no procedural delay undermines the constitutional rights at stake. The State must accord this case the attention and resources commensurate with its priority level.

Doctrines Engaged

Doctrine of Proportionality — Any state action restricting rights must be proportionate to the aim sought — it must be necessary, suitable, and not excessive.

Doctrine of Parens Patriae — The state has a duty to protect those who cannot protect themselves, such as minors, disabled persons, and the mentally ill.

Rule of Law — Every person, including the State, is subject to the law; no one is above it. Government action must have legal authority.

Rights Balancing Analysis

Primary Interest — Right to Life & Bodily Integrity (Article 21): The severity level 'Major' indicates that the right to life or physical integrity has been seriously compromised. Under Article 21, this is the weightiest constitutional interest and must take precedence over all other considerations. The state's duty to protect life is non-derogable and non-delegable. Assessment: The High priority correctly reflects the primacy of Article 21 rights. This is constitutionally appropriate and proportionate to the gravity of the harm. Vulnerability Analysis — Special State Obligation: A vulnerable party is involved. The Doctrine of Parens Patriae and Articles 15(3), 15(4), 39, and 39A impose a heightened duty on the state to protect the vulnerable. This factor strongly supports High priority to prevent further harm or injustice. Category-Specific Analysis — Criminal/Violent: This category involves the most serious engagement of constitutional rights — the right to life, liberty, and safety of persons. The High priority assigned is constitutionally mandated.

advice or a judicial determination. Final priority and legal interpretation rest with the court.
